

Rope with Appearing Knot on the End

Effect: Rope with Appearing Knot on the End.

Props Required: A single piece of rope, any color about 2' to 3' long.

Method Beforehand, tie a knot at the end of one of the ends of the rope. Bring this piece of rope out concealing the already tied knot in your right hand. Stroke the rope once or twice to straighten the rope. Bring the end up to your right hand and flip it out and down for a count of one. Nothing happens. Say something like, "I've been working on this new trick but sometimes it just doesn't work." Bring the unknotted end back up to your right hand and flick it out and down again, again nothing happens. Look deflated like this thing never works. Now, bring the unknotted end up for the final time and this time as you flick the rope out and down, switch the 2 ends of the rope, Hold onto the unknotted end and let the secretly held knot, flip loose and just let it dangle at the end of the rope. Now look as surprised as your audience. I guess this does work sometimes.
